On the night of the fight Terry was sent in to take all the fight out of Herrera in the first round. That was Terry's specialty. Few fighters could meet his furious first attack without losing nerve and confidence. But it didn't work with Herrera. To the horror of Sam and all the rest in Terry's corner, Herrera rushed just as furiously as McGovern, and for once Terry found himself extended to the utmost. If he drogs you, keep your eye on me and don't jump up 'til I give you the office by lifting my hand. Remember, now!"

The fourth round was as furious as the others. At the end Terry dropped into his chair and whispered to Harris: "Sam, I can't hurt this kid and he's knocking my block off."

"Terry," said Sam, "shoot all you've got left in this round. If you can enly knock him down you'll win. You've got to get him down!"

Senorita Stake has been an annual fixture here since 1911. Last year the stake was won by J. F. Newman & Son's Pan Zareta. Last winter the event was won by R. D. Mackensie's Superi, by The Commoner. One odd fact in the running of this stake is that in two of its three renewals the winner has proved to be a grand-daughter of the immortal Hamover. Both Abe Frank, the sire of Pan Zareta, and The Commoner, the sire of Superi, were sons of that most successful of later day American stailons.

AND WAS COUNTED OUT. In the fifth Terry threw defense and science to the winds and fought like a madman. Under the storm of blows Herrera was swept from his feet and huried to the floor. Unhurt, cool as ice, he turned on one knee and looked toward his corner. There stood the stranger, calm and smiling, peering at him under the lower rope. Herrers winked. The stranger still smiled and made no move. Hehland Aurelio the referee counted. Herrera didn't hear him so intently was he watching for the sign to leap up.

"Ten and out," yelled the referee. Bawildared, protesting, Herrera rose. But it was too late. The fight was over. Then Aurelio looked around again for the smiling stranger. This event is the Senorita Stakes, for two-year-old fillies, at three and a half furiongs, and the entries total 22, rope.

Before a crowd of fight fans that avenue and caused the Fire Department officials to refuse admittance to several hundred more persons, the Empire A. C. reopened last night, and the three ten-round contests which were staged were hard fought from the opening clang of the bell satil the final blow was landed. The main bout, which brought together Joe Toury Shugrue of Jersey City and Johnny Dundee of this city, was so full of action, quick hitting and little effecting, that the work of the lade kept the excited fans cheering wildly every second that the mill lasted.

So fast did the little fellows battle that it was useless to try to keep necount of their blows, for they drove in every important blow that is in the book of pugilism. First Shugrue would show to advantage and then Dundee would forge to the front, but as they both were singging hard at the finish, a draw was about the only decision that the referse would have rendered several hundred more persons, the
